The Learning Experience — A Step Forward

Fear, apprehension, anguish, trepidation. Are these the feelings of a patient anxiously awaiting his first encounter with a doctor? Perhaps. But they are also the feelings of a student doctor preceeding his encounter with his first patient. It is definitely a mutual dread. But once a medical student musters up enough courage to open the examining room door and step through, the worry begins to wane. Once he begins taking the history, and the patient's complaints and symptoms loosen a few cobwebs from Pathology or Medicine or Physiology, the anxiety rapidly abates. The confused, unorganized facts from the preclinical years start to gel in the student's mind. He may actually surprise himself as he makes the diagnosis. It is all part of the learning experience. The transition from preclinical to clinical medicine is a difficult one, but it is a step forward.

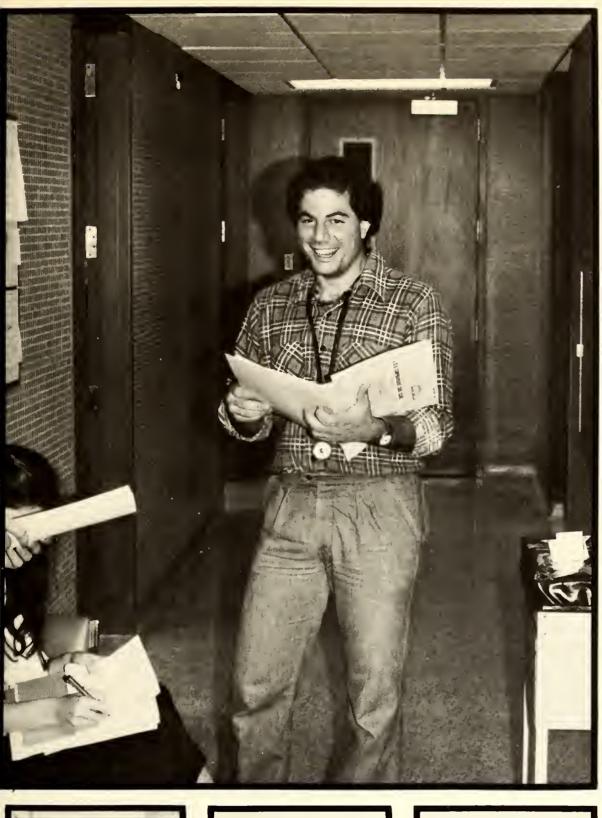

You will discover that while the patient wants the best and most modern treatment available, he is also badly in need of the old-fashioned friend that a doctor has always personified and which you must continue to be.

Dr. G. Gundersen, Past President, AMA

Ethics — An Obligation

What does it mean to practice medicine ethically? It means giving in to interminably long hours when patient welfare is at stake. It means submitting to volumes of endless, tedious paperwork, knowing that accurate record-keeping is clinically vital. It means being sharply, compulsively observant of every patient every day. It means histories and physicals that are carefully done, completely complete. It means taking the poorest, saddest, most hopeless and discouraging patient and giving that person, as well as others, one's absolute best. One cannot do all of these things without an intrinsic goodness, a loving heart, and an abiding respect for the dignity of simply being human.

If a man is good in his heart, then he is an ethical member of any group in society. If he is bad in his heart, he is an unethical member. To me, the ethics of medical practice is as simple as that.

A Relationship Based On Trust

With a medical student's busy schedule preoccupying his time with conferences, lectures, ward rounds, clinics, labs, and lunch, it is often easy to rush through an encounter with a patient without taking time to realize what is actually happening. The relationship between a doctor and his patient is based on much more than a history, a physical exam, and a few tubes of blood. It is based on trust. The trust a patient has in his doctor stems from taking time to know the person as well as the illness - the feelings as well as the symptoms - the fear as well as the pain. If he knows these things, a doctor cannot help but be successful.

Medicine is for the patient. Medicine is for the people. It is not for the profits.

George Merck, pharmaceutical manufacturer

Sacrifices Are Worth It

When you decide to enter medical school, you have decided to make great sacrifices. You must forfeit a lot of free time that many of your other friends will have. You must delay your making a living for a number of years, thereby depending on means other than your own for financial support. But you can't look at it that way. Look instead at the opportunities you're allowing yourself. You're spending countless sleepless nights toward a goal. Think about your capabilities once you've reached that goal, and suddenly your sacrifices are not so great.

I feel that the greatest reward for doing is the opportunity to do more.

**Dr. Jonas Salk**

Quality Vs Quantity

That which is expected of a physician is often controversial. The physician is required to be serious, yet fun loving, with an infinite supply of wisdom. For instance, would it be considered more humane to maintain the rate of a patient's existence or to attempt to elevate the state of the existence? There are strong arguments for both positions. Perhaps a light, once bright, darkening quickly would be better remembered than one that slowly fades to the same coming darkness.

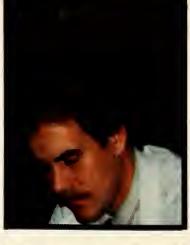

To add life to years, not just years to life.

Unofficial motto of U.S. specialists in medicine for the aging and aged.

The Art Of Healing — A Reward In Itself

When one steps forward into the clinical years, one makes a singularly awesome discovery. Life, its preservation and quality, is acutely placed in our bewildered hands, our stammering minds. We try, we succeed, we fail, we learn. We grow confident, we become useful. To know one's patient, to know his disease, to seek out the best treatment and deliver it with compassion and skill ... these will be our ultimate responsibilities. Let us learn our lessons well.

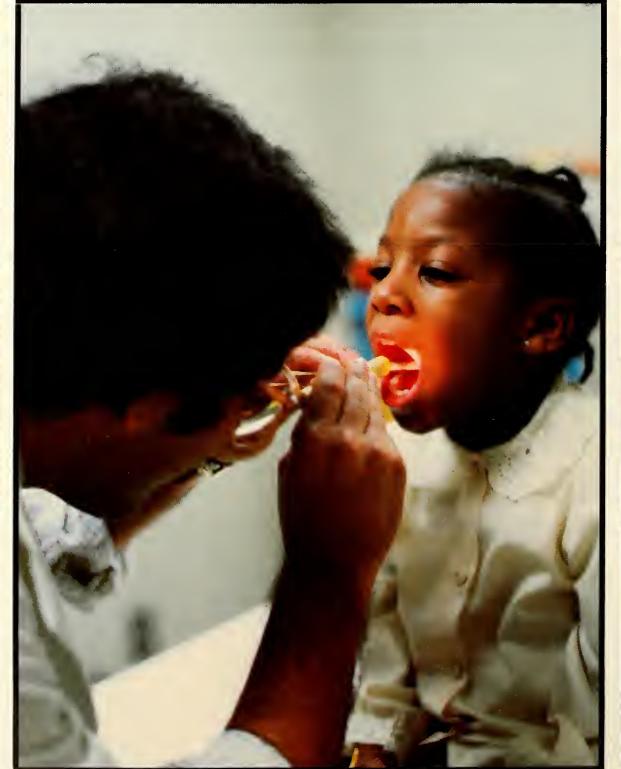

There is no greater reward in our profession than the knowledge that God has entrusted us with the physical care of His people.

**Dr. Elmer Hess, Past President, AMA**

Day One The Agony . . .

Registration- the yearly pain in the neck that dear Mrs. Welch goes out of her way to make as painless as possible. Write your autobiography, get insured, invest in your future, and say cheese! Where else can you blow over a thousand bucks in less than five minutes and not feel guilty?

"I can't believe it either."

The Lord loveth a cheerful giver.

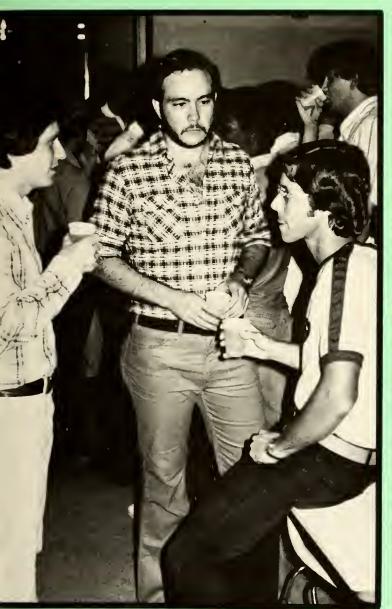

"Have you spoken with your lawyer lately?"

And The Ecstasy!

Food, drink, and friendly conversation . . . the lull at the beginning of the year is a great time for getting together.

The annual Executive Council- sponsored Drug Fair once again was a success. Drug company detailers set up their wares for the perusal of the student body. It was an educational and profitable experience for all involved. Thanks to Tommy Roberts for his work in bringing about this event.

You Can Get WHAT At The Drug Fair?

Come one, come all! Step right up young man and get your Maalox, estrogen pills, and anti-flatulents. All at an amazingly low cost- absolutely nothing. Just listen to my spiel on the wonders of my drugs and all this is yours for the keeping. Fill your pockets, fill your purse, and we'll see you some time next year.

Halloween Brings Out Our Insanity

Never pass up a good excuse for a party! Especially one that encourages you to behave like a complete idiot. There's no relief like comic relief. And if there's one thing we've got, it's comics!

On The First Day Of Christmas My True Love Sent To Me

... A Partridge In A Pear Tree.

Christmas is that time of year when everyone is busy planning parties, working on Christmas skits, attending luncheons, and having a good time. The sophomore class managed to get the Path, Pharm, and Phys faculty together to sing a unique version of a familiar carol.

The faculty women each year give a luncheon for the female medical students, interns, and residents. The purpose is to informally discuss the opportunities for women in medicine. This year's meeting led to the formation of a local chapter of the American Medical Women's Association.

Distinguished Visitors

Above: Dr. Hoyt D. Gardner, the current president of the AMA, dropped in for a Wednesday morning lecture.

Casino Party

Roulette and blackjack, food, cocktails and glitter. Entertainment by the incredible Girouard, Odenheimer and Co., and of course, "A Train!" Cameras catching dazzling smiles, delirious with the realization that we're on vacation and nobody has to get up in the morning! The pain of the months that have gone before is numbed and dimmed by the free-flowing liquor, the laughter, the lights, the excitement. The Casino Party. An inevitable tradition.

Gambling, Guzzling, & Germaine

Faculty Retreat

The faculty retreat was a totally positive experience. With enthusiastic participation in programs such as this, continued improvement in the quality of education at our medical center is assured. A continual downpour scotched Drs. Grafton and Sewell's hopes for tennis and golf trophies, but nothing seemed to interfere with anyone's appetite.

Planning For The 80's

A rainy Hodges Gardens was the scene for this year's faculty retreat, and "Planning for the 80's" was the theme. The three day meeting encouraged information exchange amoung the participants and allowed faculty members and administration figures to become better acquainted. Subjects discussed included future governance and organization, faculty recruiting, curriculum, finance, and the future of medical education. Students Mark Grubb, Tommy Roberts, Tony Alleman, and Keith Dick were present and participated in the discussions.

Fat Tuesday!

It's just another Tuesday afternoon in February, and we're settling down for another somnolent hour of lecture, when suddenly "Hey, throw me somethin" Mister!" It's Mardi Gras! Who cares if the doubloons are from Endymion in 1972? As the gross tables wind from floor to floor, they leave behind the laughter and the spirit of the city that care forgot! Wistfully, we remember . . .

Oh My God! You Mean People Really Live Here?

Such is the reaction of many a bewildered freshman who drives up Edwin in a U-Haul. Doors that don't shut, windows that don't lock, junior roaches, senior roaches, an occasional rat, leaking ceilings, leaking walls, and squishy carpets when it rains await the unsuspecting tenant. Being awakened each morning by one's upstairs neighbors' alarm clock, footsteps, toilet, shower, closet door, breakfast dishes, and front door gives this place a uniquely communal atmosphere. Linwood's vast recreational facilities include two weight rooms, a volley-ball net, and a cemetary to jog in. To live any cheaper though, you'd have to pitch a pup tent in a parking lot. To most medical students that kind of says it all. Someday Linwood will be a funny story at a cocktail party, but for now it's home . . . well almost.

Juniors Have

The Juniors gathered at Cypress Black Bayou to celebrate the survival of their first year in the clinics. Hospital responsibilities kept many away, but those that could come enjoyed terrific barbeque and got a chance to see friends they'd lost track of for months. Phil Lafleur conceived and executed the entire affair, down to building the fire and doing the cooking! It was our last party before the glorious senior year. Start the countdown!

Fun In The Sun!

Cadaver Ball

Truly, there can be no finer feeling in the field of Medicine than the realization that one has successfully completed the study of Anatomy. It calls for some serious celebrating, and hence the Cadaver Ball has become a happy tradition. The most memorable event of this year's ball was the incredibly talented performance by a group of freshmen who called themselves "The Moderator Band." Music, laughter, candles, and a little romance . . . altogether a most enjoyable evening.

Ironically, A Night Full Of Life

Freshmen And Sophomores Rally At The Bicknell Ranch

School was the farthest thing from anyone's mind as members of the classes of '82 and '83 gathered for the Second Annual Freshman-Sophomore Party at the Bicknell Ranch. Pork ribs, roast beef, and chicken managed to keep everyone busy between volleyball games, and entertainment by Sonny Grubbs and the Starlite Playboys helped most folks work off the excess barbeque and beer.

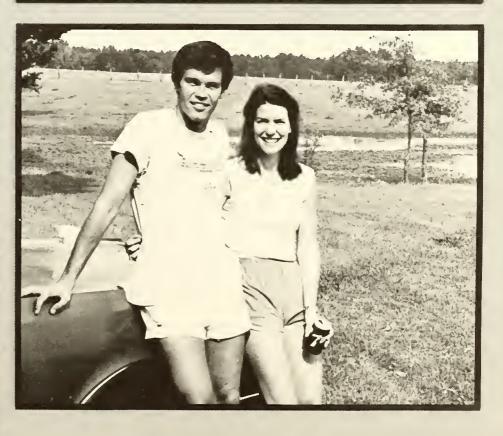

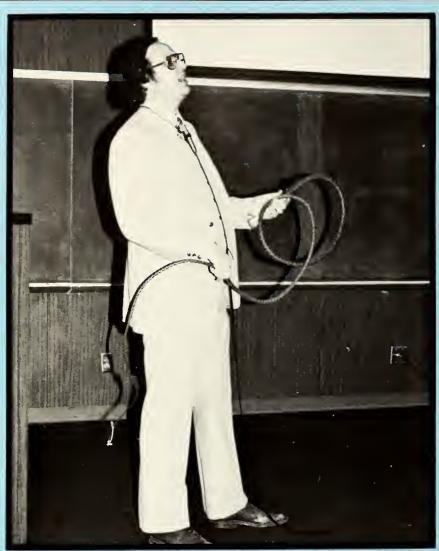

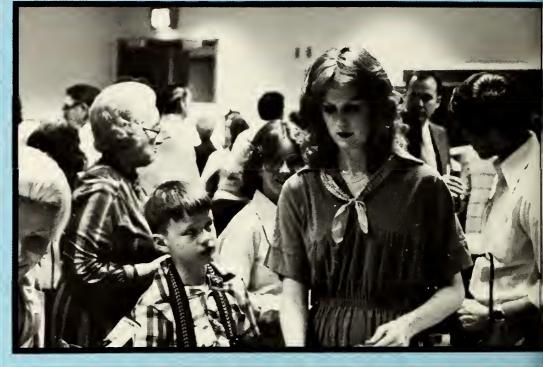

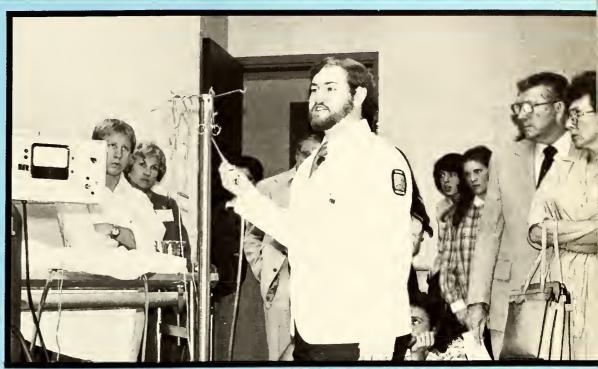

Family Day is a tradition at LSUMC. The importance of enlightening the family of a young doctor-to-be concerning the demands and rigors of the medical profession cannot be overestimated. Wives, husbands, mothers, fathers, and various important others get an inside look at what life is like for their medical student, and they gather some useful knowledge about their own health, the makings of the human body, and the general state of the art. Family Day is a lot of work for a lot of already busy people; but from the expressions on the faces of our visitors, it's more than worth it.

Family Day

Sports A Time Unburdened By Books

Football, volleyball, ping pong, pool, and frisbees . . . all forms of relaxation for those brief moments away from the grind. What we lack in expert skill we make up for with enthusiasm.

Basketball

Once again the Class of 1980 successfully captured the First Place trophy, as thirteen teams matched skill and speed on the court in LSUMC's Annual Basketball Tournament. Schoolwide spirit was high in mid-March as the spectators followed their dazzling dribbling. This year's teams were comprised of all four medical school classes, as well as the graduate school, the house staff, and BSU. Senior starter David Wallace walked away with his fourth consecutive Most Valuable Player award. Ken Ellzey walked(?) away on crutches.

Our BSU team was also a winner this season, claiming the First Consolation trophy in the State BSU Tournament. Great job, boys!

Golf Tournament

Querbes Park was the site of this year's golf tournament. Roughly forty hit the links and spent the morning chipping, slicing, putting, cursing, and actually playing great golf. The beer kegs were conspicuously absent this year, but several empty cans were seen to grace the greens. The faculty and house staff took first place, while Johnny Craig and Mike Morin tied for best score.

Baker Defeats Roberts 6-3, 6-0 in Tennis Tourney Finals

The annual LSUMC Tennis Tournament was held on May 17 and 18 at the Riverside Swim and Tennis Club. Stormy weather on Friday had everyone thinking of swimming rather than tennis, but the sun reigned on Saturday and Sunday as students, faculty, and staff gathered on the courts. The turnout was good, and there was a lot of great tennis to see. Freshman student Robin Baker was the ultimate victor, defeating Tommy Roberts in the final match.

Expressions Say It All!

Juniors Win 1980 Softball Championship

1980 TEAM PIC: Squatters: Buzzsaw Barker, Cy Morgan, Hulk Lambert, Broadway Tom Latiolais. Standers: Splinter Woods, Coop Hughes, Rifle Mooney, Stretch Karam, Scoop Neill, Bullet Lovell, Yogi Posner, Reggie Lucas. Other players who made the final cut: Scrap Iron Racca, Ty

Cavanaugh, Crash Cart Cloud, Spikes Haynie, Too Tall Young. Team Photographer: Clama Pope. Team Mascot: Acromegalic Rat. Team Siopbucket: Iran. Team Vacation Spot: Three Mile Island. Team Hero: Khomeini's Proctologist. Team Spectator: None for three years.

The Amazin' Meds squeezed out of enough afternoon rounds and call duty to put together an impressive squad that drubbed the opposition this spring en route to an undefeated season and divisional title in the LSU-S intramural league. They then went on to cap the season ending tournament for the intramural championship for their first time after finishing third in 1978 and second in 1979. Oddsmakers picked the bumbling battalion of bonafide buboes to repeat the fete in 1981.

And Now For Something Completely Different . . .

The End? We certainly hope not! How about it, Executive Council?

For those who chose to take an interest, something both special and unique was offered to the student body this year. The Student Union Movie Series was an Important addition to the LSUMC social calendar. The films were shown in the Student Union Building at no admission charge with free popcorn and beverages served. The film schedule included such notables as "O Lucky Man", "Blazing Saddles", "The Magic Christian", "Little Big Man", and "Dr. Strangelove", offering a wide variety of visual entertainment. Thanks to the efforts of Terry Tugwell, Steve Lex, Bub Hendrick, Charles Kessler, and the go-ahead from Mark Grubb, the first movie series was a success and everyone is looking forward to next year's line-up.

Spring Break

Spring Break gave us all a chance to catch our breath, or have it taken away as the case may be. Students doffed their white coats and traveled to such exotic places as Denver, Acapulco, the Gulf Coast, Florida, Arkansas, Georgia, New York City, and Bastrop, while Wishbone McCanless and company took their annual trip to Ozone. This short pause in the proceedings enabled us to tolerate the remainder of the year.

A Great Time To Break Away!

Senior Crawfish Party

Senior Graduation Dance

me of this year's award winners made it to the party: Chuck Stoer. Faculty ward for Academic Achievement, Upjohn Award; Jim Lillich. Louisiana Orthodic Award; Ken Elizey. Shreveport Medical Society Award, Chancellor's ward; Charlie McCall. Lewis Gottlieb Award; C. H. Prihoda. Family Practice ward.

With the anxiety of final final exams finally over, we found an intrinsic need for one last fling as undergrads. The Class of 1980, with Graduation only one week away, gathered for a Ten Year Reunion rehearsal. Great food and an even greater band helped make this nostalgic party a huge success. Talk was of both the past several years, with sentiment, to the next several years, with anxious anticipation. Where will we be in ten years? --- TOGETHER AGAIN!

We'll Remember Always

Graduation Day

A well-received and appreciated part of this year's Graduation Exercises was the presentation of "The Class of 80 · Where Are They Now?". This multimedia slide display and vocal and musical narration took the audience briefly into the personal life of each of the ninety-eight graduating seniors. Mike Dunn wrote and produced this emotional collage with the help of John Gregorio, David Gorsulowsky, Brian LeCompte, David Pou, C.H. Prihoda, and Arthur Primeaux. The pictures used in this presentation are reproduced in the Family Album section of this book.

Once again I have the honor and privilege of condensing the collage of feelings and experiences of a yet-to-be completed school year into a series of neatly-typed, single spaced paragraphs. Only this year must encompass a four year experience well known to all and different to each of us. To sketch in words the ideas and emotions of everyone is impossible; so instead, I will write my feelings, hoping that they may encompass some of yours.

It was here that I found friends in faces from places that I had only heard existed. I felt a need to belong and discovered added meaning in day-to-day activities. I searched for solutions to the unanswered and as my searching assumed many forms, so the answers came to me at different times and in unexpected ways. It was here that I gained a little more maturity and a lot more insight into the lives of many people as well as into my own life. I learned much more than books could ever teach, and I learned that each man is himself a book if you only know how to read him.

I've lived another year, come a little farther, grown a little taller, and seen a bit more of life and death, as well as my fellow man. Today I'm leaving someone, going somewhere, looking to the future. But regardless of how far I go or where life takes me in the years to come, I could never forget us and our achievements. And when I shall stop for a moment and wish to recall the days of those years gone by, I'll remember the days we spent together, the laughter, the tears, the happiness, the countless memories — then will I smile once again and say, "Yes, I remember when we were together." May we serve mankind with enthusiasm and continued excellence.

JUNIORS

RULES OF THE HOUSE OF GROVE

Rule #1 You may lie, cheat, steal, cuss, look disgusting, and screw up almost anything, but you may not be late for Comp Care.

Rule #2 When your patient spikes a temp to 105 at 3:00 in the morning you will not find a) a thermometer, b) a nurse, c) the X-ray technician, d) any reason to keep on living.

Rule #3 You will never find more than one of any given eight things you need at any given nurse's station.

Example. When working up a 75 year old diabetic in Gram negative sepsis you will find blood culture bottles on 7G, a tourniquet in MICU, betadine swabs on 8G, some progress note paper at 8 center, some aspirin on 8J, hematest tablets in the 6th floor student lab, and TB and Candida skin test antigens over in Allergy Clinic.

Rule #4 You know it's going to be a rotten Saturday night when:
a) there's nothing left to eat on the ninth floor but three olives and a bruised apple, b) the title of the late movie is "That Darned Cat", c) the warm body curled up in your bed is not of the opposite sex and reeks of iodophor, d) your intern mumbles something about respirations q one hour as he heads for his room.

Rule #5 Life is tough.

Rule #6 Your chances of retrieving an X-ray after having relinquished it to the file room are smaller than a bread box.

Rule #7 The first thing to check in a CODE is:

a) that you have an EKG machine, b) that all the leads have those little straps on them, c) that there is ink in the pen, d) that it has a plug, e) that there is a place to plug it in, f) that it works, g) that the patient is still worth coding, h) then check your own pulse.

Rule #8 The number of people who show up at a CODE is inversely proportional to how many are needed. (Sometimes it is equal to the hour of the morning.)

Rule #9 Junk will expand to fill whatever space you allow for it. (Examples: 4 o'clock lectures, DeVault's head, Professor's rounds ...)

Rule # 10 Show me an intern who answers his page and I will kiss his feet.

Rule #11 Students will work up no more than three patients per week.

Rule # 12 They call the last man in the class "Doctor".

GROUP 1

The basic science years witnessed the steady migration of our group from the front of the room to the back. Our clinical rotations started with medicine, followed by surgery. By Christmas, if we knew nothing else, we knew we were survivors. Since memory is blessedly selective, our junior year will be remembered chiefly for the quantity and quality of King cakes and accoutrements that delight the palate and mind when the Mardi Gras lies in conjunction with Miniblocks.

Group 3 is a rag-tag collection. While being the pride of the surgery department, this group has caused many a dept. head to ask "Who are those guys?"- many a resident to ask "Where are those guys?"- and the promotions committee to ask "Why are those guys (still here)?" Although predominantly students of the knife, this group is seasoned with diaper lovers and umbilical cord collectors.

While the bane of the housestaff, it is rumored that the opportunity to have a close working relationship with students of Group 3 has caused a 3 fold increase in nursing staff applications. Being the astute and dedicated students that they are, the members of Group 3 have been known to spend numerous nights making Liver Rounds and studying the social and medical problems of the alcohol abuser up close and personal at the Medical Corporation. Group 3 is truly a heterogeneous group, having a mixture of North Louisianians to provide a conservative outlook, Coon-asses to provide a laissez-faire atmosphere, and two Yankees to provide mature leadership. Do they think they're the best group? Yooouuu damn right!

Group 5 was a close-knit group- we worked well together and found time for parties. Lambert has decided to go into Peds .... and Psyc ... and OB ... and Medicine ... and Miniblocks, Al decided to break his leg on Medicine, and seeing all the sympathy he was getting, Chris decided to follow suit. Mike and Spring announced their engagement while on OB- hmmm. And Spring managed to get the only patient in history requiring daily scrotal girth measurements. We were all jealous of "Hane", though, for winning the coveted Comp Care Appreciation Award.

Group 6 was a totally diverse group, composed of Courtney the humble, Fuller the mellow, Hendrick the Bub, Latiolais the clever, Leopard the schemer, Lucas of the north, McKenzie of the idiot grin, Price the previously neurotic, Racca the narcoleptic, Robinson the cosmic, least but not last Smith the pip, Strain the not present, and Tugwell the bizarre. During the year, with the graclous help of our own W.C., we came within blistering distance of much hot water, but somehow managed to escape unburned. Thanks boys- it's been real.

It's been different ... to say the least. Catching bables in toilets, patients in N-n-n-natchitoches, in ane jokes about high femurs, searching for ghosts in the hospital ... Has anyone ever heard of a "standing pelvic"? And Miniblocks, gosh, they just about killed us. What do you do with all that time? Parties, ping-pong, and tennis, what else? And lastly, who will ever forget about blood loose in the eye?

Cheap Shots And . . .

SOPHOMORES

There is nothing so certain as the passage of time. And, just as certainly, our sophomore year came and went. It all began with our annual exercise in orthostatic hypotension-Registration. We spent our time, our patience, and our money in lines that did not seem to move. But then we were rewarded for our patience- we got to wear white coats for our yearbook pictures. Forget the fact that not one coat could be found that fit anyone- we looked like sophomores should look.

But soon the summer evenings waned, the trees in the cemetary laid their leaves to rest, and things began in earnest. We all bought a Robbins and a couple of thousand highlighters and set sail for February. Much to our dismay, we soon realized that the sign on the autopsy suite- "Pathology- Dead End- No Way Out" was no joke. We spent our evenings reading about proliferative glomerulonephritis and learning the finer points of tabes dorsalis. Luckily, the faculty helped us through. Dr. Smith always gave us the benefit of the doubt, Dr. Little taught us the true meaning of the word "bankwalker", Dr. Constantinides gave us a standard of excellence, and who could ever forget the instructor who gave us-"... just know Congo Red..."?

And of course there was Micro. We all Gram-stained ourselves with no trouble, although our slides were usually a different story. We struggled to prepare ourselves for the ultimate trivia bowl: the Microbiology exam. We griped and we complained, but most importantly we learned. Soon the dust cleared and we had one course down.

In Pharmacology we found a fair and friendly faculty eager to teach. We learned about cancer therapy from the Doctors Redetzki, the true meaning of volume of distribution from Dr. Pharmacokinetics, and we sat through many an enjoyable sermon from Brother Jobe. "Yes, Brother, we do believe!"

Ah, but then came the dreaded climax of our year. We put away our blue jeans, donned our white coats and stethoscopes, and headed into Medicine. There we experienced the literal meaning of the word Sophomore. "Ours is not to question why; Ours is but to do or die." Despite it all, we entered Medicine as students and emerged as doctors, ready to take our place on the wards.

So much happened during the year that should be remembered- our "moonlighting" porphyria patient, our first autopsy, arguing with a liberal labor leader- but of course, much will be lost. This year is now a fleeting memory and a page in a yearbook. We have rounds and wards and patients ahead. The sophomore year is one we have now relinquished to our ever-growing past. We are no longer sophomores. Perhaps we are now a little more wise and a little less foolish.

FRESHMEN

Well, what do you know, I did it! Faked my way through a whole year of med school! I was worried at first, what with all those arteries and veins and such, and all of that biochemical double-talk. Then I figured out I could microfilm Woodburne and glue it to my contacts. Plus I got Dr. Penny a date with my cousin Zelda, who takes tickets down at the Glenwood Theatre. And that picture of Dr. Kennedy my brother took down in New Orleans . . . you know, in one of those bars. That really helped.

Then Neuroanatomy almost got me, until I let Dr. Beal test my cremaster reflex. And I found out if you went to oil, you could see right through to the label on those Histology practicals! Believe it or not, I took those Physiology tests "cold turkey." Dr. Vekovius showed me how to use the Chi Square on 'em - you just answer "all of the above" on every one, and you pass with 95% confidence limits.

Yeah, I've got this med school stuff licked now. Bring on the Sophomore year. Who needs to know the 19 layers of the big toenail anyway? Guess I'll write Mom and tell her I'm on my way home.

Degrest Mother.

They only let me save four lives today, but I did get to perform this really neat brain operation . . .

EXECUTIVE COUNCIL

With an $11,000 budget each year, Council members plan for expenditures in order to provide student services. Few people are actually aware of everything the Council does for them. Besides planning a Beginning of the Year Party, Family Day, a Drug Fair, and a Christmas Casino Party, the Council provides occasional TGIF's at the Student Union. The Council also holds a new faculty reception to enhance rapport with the faculty. The Council athletic chairman arranges several sports tournaments each year, including golf, tennis, basketball, pool, and ping pong.

A movie projector with screen and popcorn machine was purchased this year, and a program of free movies was begun. Arrangements were also made for several additions to the Student Union Building, including Cablevision for all of Linwood. The Executive Council president represents the student body on the parking committee, the Council of Presidents, and in the Louisiana State Medical Society. Special thanks should be given to the Student Activities secretary, Charlotte Singleton, for her invaluable efforts in keeping the Council running smoothly.

JAMA

AMA

The Shreveport Medical Student Society-AMA functioned as a vital part of student communications with the Shreveport and Louisiana State Medical Societies this year. The inspiring leadership of President Jeb Butler and Vice-President Debbie Myers set the precedent for what was to be expected of this hard-working group throughout the year.

AMWA

The American Medical Women's Association is a new organization, having just received its charter this year. The group came together with the purpose of focusing attention to the special needs and interests of women in medical school, as well as providing opportunity for social gatherings. We wish them luck in the coming years.

BSU

The Baptist Student Union serves to provide our students with fun and fellowship, regardless of denomination. Among the activities are weekly Bible studies, cookouts, retreats, league basketball, and the popular Thursday free lunch and devotional. Under the leadership of President Jack Cox and our chaplain Cleatice Sipes, the BSU is a strong group at LSUMC, and those participating are able to make new friendships, strengthen existing ones, and enjoy the best of Christian fellowship.

WIVES' CLUB

The LSU Medical Students' Wives' Club was formed to provide companionship and to promote friendship amoung the female members of the student community. Meetings are held twice monthly, once to take care of business and then again for a social function which often includes the husbands. Two fund-raising events, previously a style show and a bazaar, are held during the year. Proceeds from these activities are donated to various local organizations which are in need of financial support.

By working together to plan Christmas dinners. style shows, bazaars, wine and cheese tasting parties, and many other activities, many wives have formed close and lasting friendships that may not have occurred otherwise.

WIVES' CLUB (Facing Page)

Finally realizing the major role a wife plays in her husband's acquisition of that long-toiled-for M.D. degree, the "Powers that be" at LSU Medical Center have this year decided to recognize this special group of troopers. Senior members of the Wives' Club, in conjunction with their spouses' sheepskins, received a bonafide P.H.T. degree, an honor welldeserved for Putting Hubby Through. At left, Judy Madden proudly displays her prize.

FAMILY PRACTICE CLUB

(Above)

The Family Practice Student Affiliates strive to help students understand what "Primary Care Medicine" is really all about. This year the Organization sponsored monthly free lunches with educational topics ranging from "Child Abuse" to "How to get the most out of your Residency." This year the organization sent Representatives to LAFP State Convention, AAFP National Convention in Atlanta, and all of the LAFP Board of Director meetings around the state. The Chairman this year was C.H. Prihoda; the Faculty Advisor was Dr. Rozelle Hahn.

LAGNIAPPE

In Appreciation

The members of the Pulse staff, in designing this book, have attempted to provide for you a permanent pictorial record of the people and events of 1980 at our medical school. An unbelievable number of hours went into the book's production, but I'm sure I speak for the staff as well as myself in saying it was more than worth it.

The Pulse is not the result of only a small group's effort. A number of persons outside the yearbook staff were conned into writing copy or persuaded to part with personal pictures, and others just gave plenty of moral support with their interest. This resulted in a publication which I feel more accurately represents the diverse people who make up the medical school. The copy reflects a wide variety of personalities- some serious, some humorous, both subtly and overtly, and some just plain corny. It is my hope that as you peruse the pages of this book, you will fall upon a familiar scene or two, something personal to you, that really makes you think about the good times you had this past year.

I would like to join the members of the Pulse staff in extending special thanks to David Baker of Josten's American Yearbook Company for his guidance and support, Dick Chandler for giving us the go ahead to purchase the book, Kim Mitchell for the cover artwork, Glen, Ron, Janet, Bill, Stan, and all of the others in Medical Communications who were always eager to lend professional advice, Mac Griffith for giving us almost unlimited camera privileges in the hospital, all of the folks who donated vacation pictures or gray matter, Ken and Linda for working on the book again after the harrowing experience of being editor last year, Charlotte Singleton for always being there when I needed her (on Tuesdays & Thursdays), Sharon Shively for being there the other days, and most of all, to our contributors and advertisers, without whom the production of this yearbook would not have been possible.

George Pope 1980 Pulse Editor

IN MEMORIAM

In one sense there is no death. The life of a soul on earth lasts beyond his departure. You will always feel that life touching yours, that voice speaking to you, that spirit looking out of other eyes, talking to you in the familiar things he touched, worked with, loved as familiar friends. He lives on in your life and in the lives of all others that knew him.
